DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. This office action is in response to the amendment and request for continued examination filed on March 24, 2005 in which applicant amends claims 1, 15, and 19 and responds to the claim rejections. Claims 1-5 and 7-20 are pending.

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

2. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on March 24, 2005 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-5 and 7-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by i-O Display Systems H3D Terminator 3D Gaming Glasses.

i-O Display Systems H3D Terminator 3D Gaming Glasses discloses a system that creates a realistic 3-D game playing environment by plugging into the PC and existing 3D graphic card accelerator. The system, including lightweight stereoscopic glasses, converts the video monitor screen into a stereoscopic 3-D environment, where images -- including characters and shapes -- come to life before the player's eyes.

Several of the most popular PC video games are instantly supported by the system including Unreal Tournament, Tomb Raider, Star Wars, Need for Speed and Draken. The H3D Terminator also breathes new life into older classics such as Quake and Descent. The Terminator 3D glasses support a variety of graphics cards including those based on 3dfx and NVIDIA chipsets, and support DirectX(R), OpenGL(R) and Glide(R) game standards. The H3D Terminator has two models, wired or IR wireless.

H3D software drivers working with the Z axis depth information already available in nearly any modern DirectX, Glide or OpenGL game can create a stereo 3D image pair -- one image for your left eye and a slightly different image for your right eye. The H3D Terminator glasses ensure that each eye receives the proper signal. The combination left eye and right eye images for true depth perception cause virtual worlds to go from flat to almost real.

Additionally, the examiner cites the I-O Display Products Listing information in support of the article for the H3D Terminator 3D Gaming Glasses in order to physically show the various parts of the invention, such as, the glasses, software drivers, etc. Although the product literature was printed after the filing date of the invention, MPEP § 2124 allows for an exception of the rule in order to show that the characteristics of the prior art were known at the time of Applicant's invention.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed March 24, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

6. Applicant's arguments amount to a general allegation that the claims define a patentable invention without specifically pointing out how the language of the claims patentably distinguishes them from the references. In particular, Applicant provides an opinion about how the prior art works and an interpretation (opinion) about what the article means.
